FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: February 16, 2007

STATE OF UTAH

SCHOOL & INSTITUTIONAL TRUST LANDS ADMINISTRATION

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH 84102

PUBLIC ACCESS CONTINUES ON TRUST LANDS

The Trust Lands Administration and the Department of Natural Resources have entered into a new agreement to continue to allow public hunting, trapping, fishing, and viewing of public wildlife on approximately 3.2 million acres of Utah trust lands while providing fair compensation to Utah's schoolchildren and other trust beneficiaries.

The agreement is for a 10-year term beginning September 1, 2007, continuing through September 1, 2016.

In addition to providing public access on trust lands, the Trust Lands Administration has agreed to not:

- join in any Cooperative Wildlife Management Unit for the life of the agreement
- enter into any agreement, lease, or contract that would preclude hunting, trapping, fishing, and viewing of public wildlife

The Trust Lands Administration:

- will continue to have jurisdiction and regulatory authority over trust lands
- can continue to pursue revenue generating activities on trust lands
- can continue to lease or sell trust lands

If the Trust Lands Administration sells or leases certain large blocks of trust land, the payment made by the Department of Natural Resources to Trust Lands will be reduced by specified amounts.

"I believe we have an accord that serves two worthy purposes - public access to premium hunting and recreational lands and fair compensation to the beneficial owners of those lands," says Kevin Carter, Director of the School and Institutional Trust Lands Administration. "I am pleased with the outstanding effort the Department of Natural Resources and the Division of Wildlife Resources have devoted to this arrangement."

"We are pleased with this new agreement. It represents a fair balance between the interests of the Trusts Lands Administration and DNR," says Mike Styler, DNR Executive Director. "The agreement preserves these critical wildlife habitats and keeps them open to hunters, fishers and other wildlife enthusiasts."

The Story of State Lands

When Wyoming became a State on July 10, 1890 the federal government granted approximately 4.2 million acres of land to the State. Unlike BLM and Forest Service lands -- federal public lands managed for multiple-use -- the law requires that this state land be held in trust and managed by the State Board of Land Commissioners (the Board) and the Office of State Lands and Investments (the Office) to produce income to support public schools and other State institutions named in the original grants. Accordingly, these lands are known as "State trust lands," "school trust lands," or simply "State lands." State lands are designated in blue on BLM land status maps. The most current State land ownership information is available by clicking on the WyGIS link at the Office's homepage, <http://sif-web.state.wy.us/>.

For decades the public could not use State lands without the permission of the State's lessees. In 1988, the Board adopted rules extending to the public the privilege of hunting, fishing and general recreational use on much of the remaining 3.5 million acres of State land. The rules defining this privilege are simple. First, the land must be legally accessible via public road, right-of-way, easement, public waters, or adjacent state, local or federal land. Anyone wishing to cross private land to reach State land must have the permission of the private landowner. The landowner is under no obligation to grant such permission. Second, off-road vehicle use, overnight camping, and open fires are prohibited on State land. All motor vehicles must remain on established roads. New roads or tracks cannot be created, nor can established roads be extended by public users. Activities that would damage State lands, roads, improvements, or the lessee's property are also prohibited. Finally, cultivated croplands are not open to public use. Please refer to Chapter 13 of the Board's Rules, which can be found at <http://sos.wy.state.wy.us/rules/rules.htm>.

Many residents and nonresidents enjoy the privilege of hunting, fishing, and recreating on State land. In most cases, the public uses this land in a responsible manner. However, there are those who choose to abuse the rules and, in some cases, the land. Where the privilege is abused or lessee interests damaged, the Board may close specific State land, roads and areas on a temporary or permanent basis. Public users must obey all authorized closures, restrictions, and postings.

In order to improve the public's knowledge of and compliance with Board rules and to prevent the closure of legally accessible State land, the Wyoming Legislature recently amended WYO. STAT. ANN. 36-2-107. As of July 1, 2006, it is a misdemeanor to damage State land, use motorized vehicles off established roads, charge for the use of State land, and build fires or camp on State land. Peace officers and game wardens now have the authority to issue citations to those who choose to violate the law intended to protect the public schools and other beneficiaries who are entitled to revenue from the State lands.

The Board and Office encourage the public to continue to enjoy the privilege of using State land for hunting, fishing and other recreational purposes. However, with this privilege comes the responsibility of using the land in a proper manner so the beneficiaries aren't harmed and so future generations will continue to enjoy the same privilege. The public is encouraged to notify the county sheriff's office, the local game warden, or the Office of any observed violations of the Board rules or WYO. STAT. ANN. 36-2-107 (b). We appreciate your cooperation, continued responsible behavior and mutual respect in sharing the use of State land.

If you desire to use State lands outside the scope of activities permitted under WYO. STAT. ANN. 36-2-107(b) or Board rules, please contact the Office about the possibility of obtaining a Temporary Use Permit or a Special Use Lease.
