ABOUT THE PARK

Banning State Park is filled with gorgeous scenery, historic significance and recreational adventure. The park was created in 1963 to protect a unique landscape along the Kettle River.

The river itself is a favorite of whitewater paddlers. With five sets of rapids ranging from Class III-V, it offers a wavy playground for experienced paddlers. Hikers can enjoy river views from 17 miles of scenic trails.

Watch for wildlife, climb through unique geological formations, and visit two waterfalls during your stay. Stop along the Quarry Loop Trail to explore the ruins of a 130-year-old sandstone quarry. See the quarry wall that still bears the marks of steam-powered drills and find the skeletons of the rock crusher and power house buildings.

View the Kettle River’s many rapids from park trails.

TRAIL HIGHLIGHTS

Big Spring Falls Trail

0.4 miles, one-way

Mostly flat • Packed dirt

To reach waterfall views along this short trail, you’ll need to drive into the town of Sandstone. From there, follow Highway 123 to Pine Avenue South. Take Pine Avenue South a little over a mile to the trailhead.

From the Picnic Area (no parking at the campground):

Quarry Loop Trail

1.8-mile loop

Mostly flat • Packed dirt • Rock

This trail holds something for everyone. Discover ruins of a quarry that once operated in the area, experience scenic river views, and watch Hell’s Gate Rapids as they rush downstream.

Wolf Creek Falls Loop

4-mile loop

Steep terrain • Grass • Rock

The upland forest transitions to exposed boulders as you approach a 20-foot waterfall hidden in the woods.

Upper and Lower Skunk Cabbage Trails

Lower Skunk, 0.6-miles/Upper Skunk, 1.5 miles (both one-way)

Some steep terrain • Mowed grass

Watch for numerous wildflowers and birds as you hike along the Kettle River and loop through the forest. This trail can be very wet during spring months. Note, the two segments are 1-way trails, due to a recent bridge closure.
