By sustainable trails do you mean all gravel and rock and none of the smaller trails thru the woods where the horseback riders like to ride? I would hate for the trails to all end up being like Forestville's trails.

Sustainable trails are trails where you do not need to go back and do heavy maintenance year after year. The trails will be able to handle the amount of use that is anticipated. Ideally, the trail surface is natural ground, however some spots may need additional rock to support the trail surface.
