ABOUT THE PARK

This area has drawn people for centuries, including: Dakota and Ojibwe tribes utilizing local resources; European trappers drawn by the fur-trade industry; and lumberjacks seeking to harvest the “endless stands” of white pine. The era of timber harvesting began in 1839 and flourished until lumber companies had cleared the St. Croix River valley of pines. Local lumber baron William O'Brien bought much of the land owned by the lumber companies.

In 1945, his daughter, Alice O'Brien, donated 180 acres to be developed as a state park in his memory. The park now protects 1,880 acres of prairie, oak savanna, river floodplain and hardwood forest.

Skiers on the park's many trails.

TRAIL HIGHLIGHTS

Wetland Trail Loop

Mostly flat • Skiing only

The relatively flat terrain and straight trails offer the perfect introduction for newer skiers. You will find expansive views of wetland and prairie habitat during your ski.

2.4-mile loop

Prairie Overlook Trail Loop

Hilly • Skiing only

This beautiful, secluded overlook trail makes the 2.3-mile journey there worth the effort. Skiers will enjoy a variety of difficulty as the terrain transitions from open prairie to rolling wooded hills.

5-mile loop

Riverside Trail Loop

Mostly flat • Hiking or snowshoeing

Take in impressive views of the St. Croix River along the trail.

2.7-mile loop
