ABOUT THE TRAILS

The Munger State Trail is a multiple-use trail between Hinckley and Duluth. This 70-mile paved trail offers opportunities for hiking, bicycling, in-line skating and snowmobiling. A parallel grassy trail runs from Finlayson to Willow River for horseback riding.

You'll experience the picturesque scenery and rich history of East Central Minnesota along the trail. Portions follow the railroad route that saved many lives in the historic Hinckley fire of the nineteenth century.

The trail travels near Banning and Moose Lake state parks, through the towns of Finlayson, Willow River, Moose Lake, Barnum and Carlton, and through General C.C. Andrews State Forest and the spectacular scenery of Jay Cooke State Park. The trail is also part of the 315-mile North Star/U.S. 41 Bicycle Route.

The northeast portion of the trail offers scenic views of the St. Louis River and the twin ports of Duluth and Superior.

The Alex Laveau State Trail travels from the junction of the Munger State Trail in Carlton, 6.5 miles through the town of Wrenshall to Highway 23. From Highway 23 travel 9.5 miles to Gary-New Duluth along paved road shoulders. An additional 2 miles of gravel trail goes from Highway 23 to the Minnesota/Wisconsin border.

This trail honors the memory of a former county commissioner and dairy farmer who was a strong advocate of repurposing abandoned railways as public trails.

The Willard Munger Trail System includes the Gateway, Brown's Creek, Munger and Alex Laveau state trails. The system is named after a legendary lawmaker known for his environmental legislation and support of Minnesota's state bike trail systems. See mndnr.gov for more maps and information about Minnesota State Trails.
